When taking out insurance wholly or mainly for purposes related to your trade, business or profession, you have a duty under The Insurance Act 2015 to make a fair presentation of the risk. A fair presentation of the risk is one in which every material representation as to a matter of fact is substantially correct and every material representation as to a matter of expectation or belief is made in good faith and are those facts which the underwriter may wish to know in deciding whether to underwrite the risk and/or the terms upon which to underwrite the risk.

Alternatively, you must disclose enough information which would put the insurer on notice that it needs to make further enquiries for the purpose of revealing those material circumstances. They may be relevant either to the physical risk or to the personal background and characteristics (including financial) of You and/or any director, partner, officer and/or principal of Your Business. Your duty of fair representation applies at the start of the policy, at renewal and when any variation of the policy is arranged. If you fail to make a fair representation this could invalidate all or part of the Policy and/or the insurer may refuse to pay your claim or reduce the settlement amount, depending on the circumstances.

Should You be in any doubt as to whether information is accurate or material, then You must

- discuss it with Your insurance broker or adviser;
- or disclose it to Us
